COMMITTEE REPORTS

HEALTH BANK COMMITTEE: vonWillebrands Tests - Judy Riga who conducted the Clinic for her Club, The STC of Northern Ohio reported that Maureen Setter from their Club was organizing another clinic for owners of other breeds as well as for the new members of their Club.

Shauna Pratt stated that the Greater Dallas STC tested about 35 Scotties recently and they will probably hold another clinic after the first of the year. She reported excellent cooperation from their members.

Danalee Saar reported that her Club, The STC of Greater Atlanta has had good cooperation from the Scottie owners in their Club who are engaged in breeding programs, but that the owners of older, house pets did not feel the real necessity for undergoing the test.

Dr. James Terna indicated that no tests had been done in Aloha STC, but some of the puppies that have been sent to the mainland will be tested. Dr. Terna said that there are approximately one hundred Scottish Terriers in Hawaii, some of which have come from the mainland, but that it was difficult to interest many of their owners in exhibiting.

John Sheehan told the group that most of the Scotties in his area in Minnesota have been tested and that the All-Breed Club had tested about 350 dogs of other breeds. VWD has been found in many other breeds.

Miriam Stamm stated that about 100% of the members of the Michigan Club have tested. She also mentioned that four of five All-Breed and Specialty Clubs in Michigan in the Kalamazoo area were having Dr. Dodds come to Kalamazoo in November to speak on VWD. The date is 11-17-79.

Helen Prince reported that her Club has not been as successful in conducting an organized clinic, but that most members have tested on an individual basis.

Louise Ellsworth and Ann Landry indicated that their dogs have been tested and that several litters of Scotties in the San Antonio area will be tested in the future.

Ed Ingram reported that, although he is not a member of a Regional Club, he has been working through the veterinary school of the University of Tennessee asking for further evaluation of the literature he has received on this disease. He has not seen any evidence of VWD in his breeding stock, although he recognizes that the disease constitutes a problem in the Breed.

Donn LaVigne reported that the Southern California STC had a clinic in September and about 65 dogs were tested. The Schnauzer Club will also test since VWD has been found in that breed. Scottish Terriers not yet tested can participate in this clinic.

Ron Giese reported that the Rocky Mountain STC is a newly formed Club and that at this time less than 10% of the membership has tested.

Peggy Burge stated that the San Francisco Bay STC has held three clinics in which more than 100 dogs have been tested; new litters are also being tested.

Mr. Weiner reported that the New England Club is doing the testing on an individual basis, they being very close to Dr. Dodds' laboratory.

Mr. Marshall commented that he has been following the literature on this disease and is attempting to assess the results of the tests that have been conducted. It is his opinion that at this point the incidence of VWD in any breed is an "educated estimate" in that it is his opinion that the samples taken have not been "random samples" of the breed as a whole, but rather have been "biased samples" of the breeders of Scottish Terriers. His explanation of "random sampling" would be to have available the records of all of the Scottish Terriers in the U.S. and then by computerization choose a dog to be tested at regular intervals from the entire group, i.e. every 10th dog on the list. He feels that such a testing program would be more representative of the breed and thus produce a more definitive answer to how serious the problem is in the breed. Mr. Marshall stated however, that if he were breeding at this time, he would test his own stock and would be concerned about breeding to "high clear dogs" and would maintain a very "high clear" level in his own breeding stock.

Dr. Hal Taylor Sr. reported that his information reveals that about 1200 Scottish Terriers have been tested, and the incidence of "affected" is running about 5%, a figure he considers high. He stated that he, as a doctor, has seen a dog bleed to death after having his toenails cut and that ten years ago the reason for the dog's death was not known. Now it is known to be Factor VIII Antigen level - a genetic autosomal recessive (gene). He cautioned those who are not aware of their dogs being possible carriers that they are perpetuating the disease and feels that if we do not continue to test and avoid bleeding dogs that are affected with the disease VWD cannot subside. He commented that the tests available are the best we know of to-day, although as the work progresses the tests will undoubtedly be refined and improved. He also stated that if it is known that a dog is affected and it requires surgery serious problems can be forestalled by the doctor having a supply of Factor A on Hand.

General discussion followed on the need for more data to be compiled and the continued interest of those breeding and their awareness of the disease. It was recognized that there are variables some of which are not explained at this time, but that continued participation will be worthwhile.

VIRAL INFECTIONS: Kathi Brown reported on a seminar she attended on the subject of parva virus. One of the particular forms reported is very fast moving, involves dehydration, abdominal pain, etc. Some of these infections are air-borne. More information is needed on this infection.

FLEAS: Outbreaks of fleas were reported in the Washington D.C. area this summer - a situation far more serious than in prior years. People from other areas had similar problems this past summer.

CANCER IN SCOTTISH TERRIERS: No report.

INSURANCE FOR MEMBER CLUBS: The importance of Member Clubs carrying liability insurance was stressed. Although in the case of injury from your dogs is the responsibility of the individual owner whose liability insurance should be current, nevertheless the individual Club can be joined in a suit or sued alone and complete liability insurance is needed. Mr. Sheehan stated that some agents are not interested in writing this type of policy, but direct contact with the insurance company should bring results. He mentioned that St. Paul Fire & Marine, Fireman's Fund and All State probably write this type of coverage. Catherine Ridgley stated that the STC of Greater Dayton has coverage and promised to furnish more information about the Company writing it.

RECENT LEGISLATION: Attention was directed to the law recently passed in North Carolina making which invokes severe penalty for keeping a dog in a motel or sleeping room. There was discussion of the increasing reluctance of motels and hotels to rent to dog owners, the reason being that owners are careless about the damage done by their animals. Some motels are requiring a substantial deposit, some of which will be retained as extra compensation for the maids. Everyone agreed that the solution to the problem is to police our own groups, and have the various Clubs stand behind it. One Club asks each guest registering for its Specialty to fill out agreements re:responsibility for damage; the Clubs stands behind this and if the guest does not fulfill his obligation then the Club holds him responsible. Another suggestion was to have written information regarding the location of specific exercise areas which is given to every registrant. This should spell out to him what is expected of a responsible dog owner and if one observes an offender, risk the ire of the owner, and speak to him about it. Another suggestion is for each Club to have its own Committee to check rooms with the housekeeper to verify damage.

RECRUITING NEW MEMBERS FOR CLUBS: Careful evaluation of new prospects for membership was agreed upon as wise policy. Inactive members are expensive for every Club. Prior attendance at meetings before application is also a must.

Publicity for your Club is also important so that interested people can locate the Club. Examples are advertising in the yellow pages, inform the local veterinarians of the existence of your Club, have Fact Sheets pertaining to your Club; association with a local All Breed Club or Kennel Club, be available at Fun Matches. Membership in Pure Bred Dog Associations was also suggested. Local breeder's directories was also suggested, although these usually bring the attention of people who wish to buy dogs rather than prospects for your Club. Education of owners that breed Clubs have other interest than exhibition of dogs is important to generate

CHARLES J. SMITH & VICTOR BOUTWELL WILL JUDGE CLASSES, SWEEPSTAKES AT MARCH SPECIALTY.

The AKC has licensed our seventh annual Specialty Show to be held March 22, 1980 at Governor's exposition Building in the American Royal Complex.

Site of the 1980 show is approximately 2 miles from the Auditorium where shows have been held in the past.

Charles J. Smith, of Dallas, Texas, will judge the Regular Classes and Victor Boutwell, of Topeka, the Sweepstakes.

The headquarters is being moved from the Holiday Inn to the Ramada Inn this year; the Ramada Inn is directly off the Broadway exit ramp of I-70 in downtown Kansas City, and is surrounded by a park area. The hotel has assured us that Scottie people will be assigned to first floor rooms where possible. We will have a hospitality suite through the weekend. It is only 6 blocks from the Ramada Inn to the 12th Street Viaduct to the show site.

Are you ready for this? Buses will take us from the hotel on Saturday night to well known Stephenson's Apple Orchard Restaurant on the outskirts of Kansas City, where we will have our banquet. So start making your plans now.

AUGUST SHOW IN ALEXANDRIA, LA. FULL OF PLEASANT SURPRISES

Those who attended the Alexandria (La.) All Breed Dog Show the weekend of Aug. 18-19 had ample opportunity to chat with Mrs. Elizabeth Meyer, of Reanda Kennels, in England. Mrs. Meyer lives only 20 minutes from the London Airport which enables her to ship dogs easily, and also 20 minutes from Betty Penn-Bull (Kennelgarth) with whom she goes to dog shows.

Mrs. Meyer said she has 15 bitches, all of whom live in the house with her, having their "sleeping boxes" lined up along the wall of one room. Those who have visited Mrs. Meyer attest to the fact that these well mannered dogs all live in the house. They have access to the yard at all times except at night, so Mrs. Meyer says there is no problem.

Mrs. Meyer has sent Reanda Scots all over the world. She recently shipped two to a doctor in Yugoslavia, who told her his were the only two Scottish Terriers in Yugoslavia, although she has not verified that fact. Proof of Mrs. Meyer's world-wide reputation is the fact that she is president of the Japanese Scottish Terrier Club.

We first had the opportunity to visit with Mrs. Meyer at the home of Rose L. Henderson, show chairman, and later Saturday at a dinner party given for Mrs. Meyer. Several other judges were present (no exhibitors) and there was lively dinner conversation - all concerning dogs, of course. After the Sunday show still another resident of Alexandria gave a wine and cheese party to which all Scottie exhibitors were invited for informal visits with the distinguished visitor. When asked about the Scots shown under her that day, she said "round eyes and large ears" were the two major faults she found. She said conformation, grooming, bone structure, etc. were good. She said she found a few "apple heads" but good necks and shoulders.

Mrs. Meyer fled Vienna with her husband when Hitler entered Austria in 1938. Mr. Meyer was a motorcycle enthusiast and racer with a Rally dealership in Vienna. The Rally Company helped them get to England to resettle.

Mr. Meyer opened a garage in England and bought his wife her first Scottie from a customer. It died at 8 months of distemper. She then bought a Walsing bitch, which was run over and discouraged her for several years but she eventually bought "Medwall Marchioness" from a Mr. Metcalf. It was a silver brindle and became her foundation bitch. Her new champion Reanda River Queen is the 14th generation tail female. She has just lately gone into breeding wheatens with a litter of 4 wheatens and one silver brindle. She kept one male and one female wheaten but stated she doesn't know what to do next in wheatens.

She has judged in Europe (Germany, Switzerland, Sweden and Holland). Six years ago she was at the Northern Ohio show and has returned to this country 5 times since. She plans to go from Alexandria to the west coast to visit Bergit and Clay Coady (Bergit spent 3 years with her when she went from her home in Hamburg to England to learn about Scotties) and from there she will go on to Hawaii to visit with Mrs. Meade Wildrick, also a Scottie fancier, who has visited with Mrs. Meyer in England.

Mrs. Meyer has bred and shown 31 champions, which is quite a record in England considering that class dogs must go over the champions in order to attain their own championships, unlike the United States where points are given at the non-champion level.

Mrs. Meyer, who has been a widow for 12 years, brought a puppy to New York with her to deliver to a young couple just starting out in Scots.

We did ask her about VWD, a subject about which she knew very little, stating they do not have any tests in England which would disclose this blood disease. She was very concerned about Von Willibrand's disease and hopes that tests are developed soon in her country.

August Show in Alexandria (con't)

(P.S. Mrs. Meyer stated that England does not have the vast pet food selection available in the United States. She buys (and bakes!) 36 lbs. of hamburger a week, buys frozen blocks of tripe which she melts down, cooks a carrot and onion and beef bone stew every day, and if my memory serves me right, the only grain she uses is pure wheat meal. This is all added together to feed her kennel. She feeds no vitamins or other additives, states that the diet she feeds produces good bone and coats and does not require anything else.)

One of the joys for myself and many of those who attended the Alexandria show was a chance to meet and talk with Mrs. Fayette Ewing IV, of Greenwood, Mississippi, widow of Fayette Ewing IV, grandson of Dr. Fayette Ewing (II) founder of Nosegay Kennels (1897) in Pineville, Louisiana, near Alexandria. Many of those in attendance at the show had been friends of Dr. Ewing, who ended the Nosegay Kennels in 1943 at the age of 89.

Mrs. Ewing brought to the show for display a number of Dr. Ewing's books and papers and a sterling silver reveré bowl given to Dr. Ewing in 1950 by the Quaker Oats Co., Ken-L-Products Division "for distinguished service to American dogdom". (Mrs. Ewing also presented the Best of Breed trophy, a silver plated water pitcher given in Dr. Ewing's memory by Mrs. Frank Lewis, of Alexandria. The happy winners were Richard and Debby Fowler, with their open dog entry RUFFTON'S DYNAMO, which also went Best of Winners for a 5 pt. major). I think the display item which had the most "personality" was a well-worn stripping knife used by Dr. Ewing.

On display were pictures of 3 generations of Best-in-Show Scots - Wyrebury Wrangler, Water Gypsy and Nosegay Nankin.

Also on display was a clipping in which James Garrow, of Scotland, said of Dr. Ewing's book "Book of the Scottish Terrier" in 1940: "The cult owes a very great debt to that veteran enthusiast Dr. Fayette C. Ewing of Louisiana, USA, for it was he who put the Scottish Terrier into the limelight. It was his dogged perseverance that made the diehard the leading variety of Terrier at the great American dog shows. . . . had Dr. Ewing done nothing else but write his Book of the Scottish Terrier, he would have left a lasting monument to his memory."

Other articles detailed the history of Nosegay Kennels and one article noted that in 1890 there were four Scottish Terriers entered at Westminster. In 1902 there were 32 entries.

Dr. Ewing, an eye, ears, nose and throat specialist had two hobbies. Scotties and Shakespeare. A scan of various writings by him displayed in Alexandria revealed many quotations from Shakespeare.

Dr. Ewing produced 10 American Champions, 8 English Champions and developed six more bred in this country into champions. His kennel was registered as No. 98 by the American Kennel Club on December 8, 1898.

Frances Ewing was a joy to meet, a very gracious lady, and all who met her felt privileged to be so close for a moment to such an important segment of Scottish Terrier history.

While Mrs. Ewing was in Alexandria, she was happy to have an opportunity to visit the churchyard cemetery where Dr. Ewing was buried.

One of the delights of our trip to Alexandria was a party given in the "Bottle House" - a term which was casually mentioned during the weekend as being the place for a wine and cheese party after the show for visiting Scottie enthusiasts. We soon discovered why the Bottle House was well known to those in Alexandria who were inviting the guests. I'll let Mrs. Frank Lewis, the owner, tell it in her own words:

"The Bottle House was built in 1941 by my father, Drew Bridges, who was a pharmacist. It was his hobby and has since been a hobby of our whole family.

"There are about 3300 bottles - most of which are pharmaceutical bottles and Coca-Cola gallon syrup bottles. There is one panel of champagne bottles from weddings of my generation, and a new inside panel of champagne bottles from the present generation of weddings."

The bottles are the wall of the Bottle House, laid horizontally so that one end of the bottle is visible at the outside of the wall, the other at the inside. They are used in the manner of bricks, being mortared into place (is mortar the correct term?) and the sun glistens through the walls with many hues reflected from the various colored bottles. The inside, with a tile floor, is lavishly furnished with antiques, and has a kitchen for preparation of food, etc.

Mrs. Lewis and her family now live in her father's home on possibly an acre of ground, with the Bottle House situated behind the main house.

The Bottle House is used only for entertaining, and as Rick Fowler, of Texas, said (reflecting the feelings of all of us who were fortunate enough to attend the wine and cheese party),

At the risk of getting deeper into hot water with Scottie folk, I will comment further on VWD situation. Since it is apparent that many different views can be taken of the written word, let me point out I am not being derisive or adopting a "know-all" line and I am NOT a backyard breeder, in fact I do feel a rather responsible person. My three bitches were spayed, my only male is now neutered and our one whole Scottie is a youngster carefully purchased as she is in tail female line to our Canadian foundation bitch. Our dogs are house pets and we have a breeding plan using selected lines of Int. Ch's Glendoune Gauntlet and Westpark Derriford Baffle mostly through Canadian lines of Balrene and Treleaven which were sound lines. We have not had a litter in over eight years. Back yard breeder? I think not! Hobby breeder - yes.

Obviously from your many letters and xeroxed articles a serious situation does exist. Whether this is world-wide or just in the U.S.A. I am attempting to find out. While it is of the utmost importance to solve this situation as quickly as possible, we should take a look back and try to see why this became such a problem. Now before anyone raises an angry fist, again I offer my comments ONLY in the hope they may do some good.

People have different ideas on breeding. Some spare no expense to ship their bitches here and there to mate Mr Big Winner, whoever he may be at that particular time. Others seem quite content to breed mother to son, brother to sister and father to daughter. Yet others simply breed X to Y to produce puppies as a living. Surely the fun of breeding and owning Scotties is to develop a strain of one's own. To be able to look at a pedigree and as years go by to know each and every dog on that pedigree. The dogs are family and medical problems are spotted in their infancy and appropriate steps taken so as not to perpetuate them. I recently discussed VWD with my Vet., but apparently no such testing exists as yet in Canada. However as many of the puppies I sold and all my own dogs down through 5th or 6th generations have received surgery with no apparent bleeding problems, my Vet., felt there was no cause for alarm. But if clinics do begin a test program, I will most certainly cooperate.

I do feel unless breeders stay more within their own strain - and I don't mean by inbreeding - there will be more problems arising.

Today there is so much blending of different lines that really no distinct strains exist. Last year I saw a dog, a champion, and his 5 generation pedigree contained an old Scottish prefix in all but 2 or 3 dogs. Obviously was a credit to him.

The other point that does worry me is the number of people who wrote saying they had known of cases where Scotties had actually bled to death. Why then was this situation only brought to light after an article appeared about a year ago in the AKC Gazette? (If anyone would xerox me off a copy of that article, I would appreciate it very much). Surely was it not the duty of breeders who had such dogs to find out why and how their dogs had this condition.

Years ago I was looking for a particular dog to compliment my breeding stock. I found him, but he developed a mild Mandibular Periostitis which we had confirmed at Guelph University. He did recover and was placed in a pet home at my request. From Guelph I learned limited research was being conducted and that Scotties and Westies were the chief sufferers. They advised me it was a congenital condition, not hereditary and that the dog could be used at stud with caution. However I felt quite strongly (still do) about using any dog with a serious fault or medical problem however good he may look, so this dog was never used at stud. I have kept in touch with Guelph on this matter and have tried to assist them in any way I can. Perhaps readers would be willing to let me know of any cases they may have seen.

I will ask Guelph about VWD and will keep readers posted on news from Britain on this subject. Thank you for your letters commenting on my brief remark in the Summer Issue of the Bagpiper. (1979). and as many of you did, never hesitate to say just what you sincerely feel, I really appreciated each and every letter received. BD
