Cover Story

The Right Chemistry - As each of us commenced our breeding programs we jumped in and started to research. We researched by sitting ringside, lingering in the grooming tent, talking to club members, looking to a mentor, and reading, reading, reading. Our hopes being to discover the formula for the dogs that represented to us the essence of the Scottish Terrier. Angel and Reggie have repeatedly been the right chemistry for us by producing outstanding offspring that have won our hearts.

Our covergirl, "Thea" Ch. Alchemy's Tincture of Angel, has been a constant delight for us. She has given us boundless thrills which started as Best in Sweepstakes and now to multiple Group and multiple Specialty wins.

In the centerfold we are featuring our two girls Thea and Mavis. "Mavis" Ch. Alchemy's Battleaxe is a validation of the right chemistry between her parents. These sisters have been a pleasure for us to watch together in the ring as Mavis completed her championship. She has won Multiple Best of Winners at Major point shows as her sister went Best of Breed.

Another sibling is showing promise and getting ready to enter the show ring - "Oliver" Alchemy's Adrenalin. Oliver is a full brother to Thea and Mavis to watch for this summer. We hope he sets your heart racing as he does ours.

Not only are we excited about our two typey, elegant girls but are also very enthusiastic about their promise for the whelping box. Our hope is they will produce wonderful progeny which continue in qualities to those who came before them. However, it will also depend on the correct selection of a stud to produce the right chemistry once again. Sound breeding programs are built and we all rely on one another for each other's special ingredient.

Correction to Minutes

In the Minutes of the STCA Board of Directors of January 21, 1995, it should read, "COMMITTEES: Annual Awards: ...Motion-Krause/Brooks, that the American Bred Bitch trophy will be known as the 'Hebrides' and will be co-sponsored by Dame Catharine Carpender, k.m., Jeffrey & Lori Teague and Larry J. Smith."

Wanted:

The Bagpiper would like to honor our Scottish Terrier senior citizens. We need stories about Scotties 10 years or older, together with pictures. Try to keep the stories brief (100 words or so) and the pictures informal, rather than show pictures. We'd like to hear about "old friends." How are they spending their retirements? What feats of Scottie ingenuity have they accomplished? How well trained have their owners become? The next Bagpiper deadline is July 30. Take a minute to write about a special Scot and send it in.

Bagpiper Mailing Information

The Bagpiper is mailed to STCA members, to Scottish Terrier judges and to the AKC library. Annual subscriptions (4 issues) are available from the Editor to non-STCA members at a cost of $25.00. There is a $20.00 surcharge for foreign subscriptions.

The Bagpiper is mailed 3rd Class Bulk. First Class mailing is available for an additional charge of $10.00. Single issues and back issues are available from the Editor at a cost of $10.00 each, or four for $25.00.

Third class bulk mail is not forwarded. Be sure to send your new address to Recording Secretary Sonya Neve, 26533 Rd. 24, LaJunta, CO 81050, well in advance. If you have moved and miss an issue, we will replace it if possible, but only if your request is accompanied by payment for the extra postage.

Advertising Information

AKC Delegate's Report...

My credentials were approved in time to be invited to the March AKC meeting, which is the big meeting of the year. Newly seated delegates were invited to orientation and dinner with the AKC Board on Monday preceding the Tuesday meeting.

The orientation was very exciting. We toured the AKC offices at 51 Madison Avenue and met many staff members before orientation. We were told about the new microchip program, current education projects, the new Health Foundation (Parent Club Genetics Conference to take place October 20-22, 1995), which helped finance the identification of the genetic marker for copper toxicosis in Bedlington Terriers. Efforts to modernize the processes of identification, registration and record keeping for breeders and for AKC were described. Some day soon, we may be able to register our dogs and do AKC business from home on the computer! We were informed of plans to take a more proactive approach in putting AKC's best foot forward with the public. Regarding finances, we were told that AKC has plans to become much less dependent on dog registration monies. It seems to me that AKC can make better decisions in today's dog world if it is not dependent on sheer numbers of registrations to be able to exist and function. Last, explanation was made of exactly how the meeting would be run so that we would be able to participate effectively.

The meeting on Tuesday was well attended and the voting for new Board members took quite a bit of time. Each candidate was given time to speak. The newly elected Board members are Patti L. Strand, Dr. Patricia H. Haines and Dr. Carmen L. Battaglia. Also voted on was an amendment to require 45 minutes rest or meal time for judges whose assignments exceed five hours (which passed) and an amendment to prevent champions from competing in the Open class (which failed).

Read at this meeting and scheduled for vote in June are two amendments, the first to Article VI, Section 6 of the AKC Constitution and By-Laws, to prevent a delegate's application from being indefinitely held in abeyance because of failure of the Board to approve or not approve; and the second amendment to Chapter 17, Sections 22, 23 and 24 of the Pointing Breed Field Trial Rules which would authorize the Gordon Setter Club of America to hold annual national and national amateur champion stakes and formalize the annual AKC National Bird Dog Championship stake.

Individual delegates had an opportunity to speak and there were warnings of an apparent increase in the incidence of Brucellosis (see article elsewhere in this issue).

In these changing times, I will try (as best the Bagpiper deadlines allow) to keep you informed in advance of votes and to report on the results. Since issues are read at one meeting for vote at the next meeting (there are four meetings a year), I will be able to keep the Board informed and to receive direction from them.

Those of you who have recently registered a Scottish Terrier have already seen the letter STCA now includes with all new AKC registrations. Carole Fry Owen composed the letter and brought it to the STCA Board. The graphics are by Michele Williams. We're proud of this effort and proud to be only the seventh breed - and the first terrier breed - to try to reach new owners in this way. For those of you who haven't seen it yet, here is the letter.

MRS. EVELYN KIRK, Corresponding Secretary
2603 Derwent Drive SW, Roanoke, VA 24015

Dear New Scottish Terrier Owner:

So you have a new Scottish Terrier. The more you know about the breed and its unique characteristics, the better you will appreciate your dog and be able to provide the care it needs.

Let us tell you about the Scottish Terrier Club of America. Our national club has more than 1,000 members from all walks of life. Our bond is a love for the Scottish Terrier. The club has two annual national specialty shows.

Many educational materials are available from the Scottish Terrier Club of America. A good starter is the club's Scottish Terrier information packet ($2.00). Other STCA publications include handbooks, a grooming manual, an illustrated amplification of the Scottish Terrier Standard, and the award-winning quarterly magazine, The Bagpiper. Additional good Scottish Terrier reading is in books like:

- ↳ John Marvin's The New Complete Scottish Terrier
- ↳ T. Allen Kirk, Jr.'s This Is The Scottish Terrier
- ↳ Muriel Lee's The Official Book of the Scottish Terrier

If you live near a regional Scottish Terrier club, you are in luck. Visit a meeting to discover fellow Scottie fanciers. Scottie clubs are in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Denver, Washington, D.C., Dayton, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Louisville, Kansas City, Atlanta, Dallas, Houston, Seattle, Tampa Bay, New York, Utah, Washington State, Michigan, New England, northern Ohio and western Virginia.

Regional clubs have interesting educational programs and may sponsor specialty shows, matches, vonWillebrand's and thyroid testing, tattoo clinics and more. Most publish informative newsletters. All specialize in Scottie fun!

The truth is, though, most Scottish Terrier owners live far from a regional club. Should that be your case, ask the national club for individual contacts in your own area. You will discover that STCA members love to "talk Scottie" and are very willing to answer questions about the breed.

One activity for which the STCA wishes there was no need is RESCUE. Many concerned Scottish Terrier owners help place lost or abandoned Scotties in good new homes. There aren't enough of us. The STCA urges all owners to help keep Scotties from among the millions of unwanted pets euthanized in the U.S. each year. You can volunteer at an animal control facility. Be a temporary foster home. Donate money. You can help, too, by suggesting ownership of a rescue Scottie to your friends who might want to own a Scottie. Many regional Scottish Terrier clubs have rescue programs. The STCA has a national rescue coordinator. Deserving rescue Scotties are available!

The "Cost" is usually a donation to cover rescue expenses. You also can do your part for RESCUE by preventing it. Spay or neuter your new Scottie pet. You will prevent unwanted litters and avoid messy, twice yearly heat cycles. In addition, you will reduce roving/marking/aggression aggravated by mating instincts.

Did you know spaying/neutering can improve your Scottie's health and increase its lifespan? It is an unfortunate fact that Scottish Terriers are at higher risk than many other purebred dogs for some malignancies. Veterinary research shows that female dogs of any breed spayed before their first season have a 0.5% risk of developing mammary cancer. After age 2 1/2, that risk becomes 26% for unspayed females. Spayed females also cannot develop ovarian or uterine cancers or pyometra. In male dogs, early neutering reduces risk of prostatic and testicular disease and malignancy.

Please understand that American Kennel Club registration is not an indication of a Scottish Terrier's breeding quality or health background. Even a Scottie that has all AKC champions in its pedigree may not be a candidate for breeding!

If you consider breeding a litter, compare your Scottie to the official breed Standard first. Also, investigate health checks that should be done before breeding. Be sure you do not breed Scotties affected by genetically transmitted conditions that can include Scottie Cramp, vonWillebrand's Disease, skin problems, thyroid dysfunction and poor temperament.

To protect your Scottie pet, identify it. Your safest backup to a collar and tags is a tattoo registered with a national tattoo registry. Several such organizations boast of a 95% or better return rate on lost dogs. Tattooing a dog is painless and inexpensive. It is done on the dog's tummy or inner thigh. For more information, contact one of the national tattoo registries. The STCA endorses no particular registry. They include:

- National Dog Registry, 800/637-3647
- Tattoo-a-Pet, 800/828-8667
- I.D. Pet, 800/243-9147

Scottish Terrier Club of America members are united in a common love of the Scottie. Please join us in encouraging responsible dog ownership.

Wednesday, March 8

Departure time from Dallas to London on a DC37, several meals, snacks, time for several cat naps and a movie. A good flight, arriving Heathrow Airport at 6 a.m.

We were amidst hundreds of travelers filing through as foreign visitors—a strange feeling. First we passed through immigration, then customs, with nothing to declare, as this was a “pleasure trip.” Shortly we passed by the sniffer dogs and finally funneled into the waiting area where we were met by our new American friend and organizer, Kathy Uhrich. We would soon learn that Kathy was extremely capable in organizing “anything.” From the quaint old hotel, The Sir Christopher Wren House on the Thames, built in 1676, we were just a few minutes walk from Windsor Castle, shops, restaurants and historical sights. The smart desk clerk had our names, rooms and key ready. In our rooms were bowls of fruit, fresh flowers and we were surrounded by such delightful old English charm. We unpacked, jumped into a hot Jacuzzi bath and rested for a few hours. We had free time to explore the Windsor shops and the marvelous old architecture and those wonderful cobblestone streets. Everything you ever heard about the heritage and splendor of this unique place is true.

Time for lunch. We chose a quaint luncheon room on the Thames River, a perfect movie setting. The waiters and tables were dressed to perfection. This was our first introduction to English traditions and taste for foods. First, they serve rolls, butter and then the main course. It is amazing how one soon becomes accustomed to the differences. We strolled down the cobblestone street admiring the architecture, antique shops and back to the “Wren House” to rest before meeting the other members of our group of Scottie travelers. Kathy and Charla Hill, her co-organizer and helpmate, were present for the introductions. We were tired but excited about meeting the other Scottie members of our group. There were people from different states, Canada and South Africa. We were happy to have this opportunity to be together and to have Kathy as our guide. We all walked over to a favorite Italian restaurant and then back to the Wren House where Kathy had reserved the tea room for coffee and a surprise birthday cake for one our members - Don Bankston -

Friday, March 10

Perfect wake-up morning, clear, crisp, with the sun pooping through. A full English breakfast was served at 8 a.m. I have never seen such an assortment of food. We strolled the cobblestone streets to see the Royal guardsmen march down the street, resplendent in their ceremonial uniforms. The changing of the guard. Lunch in a pub of fish and chips, a little shopping and back to the Wren House for the first Scottish Terrier seminar. And WHAT a seminar. The Grande Dame of Scotties, Miss Betty Penn-Bull. Betty has owned Scotties since 1928. She has written several books, the most important being the Kennelgarth Scottish Terrier. Betty spoke about the origin and history of the breed, with many personal stories about famous dogs, kennels and their owners. Miss Penn-Bull answered many questions and happily signed copies of her books. She is a grand lady who we had the good fortune to meet. After high tea in the tea room, relaxing and getting acquainted, we made plans for dinner at 7:30 at Kings Court Pub, a short walk back to the Wren House for an early night before the big STBEA championship specialty breed show in the morning.

Saturday, March 11

Wake up at 6 a.m. - coach departs Windsor at 8 a.m. for Westhampstead and the STBEA breed show. The excitement was in the air and we all felt the enthusiasm. We were offered ring-side seats, and I do mean ring-side seats. Our feet touched the mats alongside the Scotties and exhibitors. Most of us hurried to the selling booth for a few gift items. The room was crowded but everyone took time to smile and welcome us. As these lovely Scotties, one by one, were judged, we were proud to be a part of the celebration. Lunch at ring-side, bring your own or buy from the caterer, all homemade. Mrs. Jernhake from Sweden was the judge. We had the unforgettable privilege of "going over" Ch. Wildermist Clara. She is one of their top winning Scotties, having won the breed at Crufts in 1992-93-94.

Clara was absolutely breathtaking. The show was very informal, friendly and the exhibitors were SO courteous. The parade of champions warmed everyone's heart. Our group walked on down the hill to a cozy pub for a chat while STBEA prepared a lovely catered dinner back at the show site. Shirley Justus, STCA president, was asked to make a few comments and she stated, "Please don't change a thing, the show was perfect." They seemed to appreciate that. She also presented a trophy to be presented to the reserve champion from the English Championship Tour Group. This was a lovely time to remember.

Sunday, March 12

Wonderful weather. The hands-on Scottie seminar began at 9:30 with the well known international judges, Mrs. Nellie Holland and Carol Annan, and three beautiful Scotties. They both explained their theories on judging the Scottish Terrier. After lunch another excellent seminar with Mr. Dan Eriksson, Sweden. His seminar was concerning structure with general observations on judging. We had a more formal dinner that evening at the hotel. Our presenters joined us and we all had time to share fun stories. There was a real feeling of camaraderie. We salute you, Kathy Uhrich.

Monday, March 13

A visit at the famous Gaywyn Kennels and Mr. and Mrs. Owen. Thank you for this special honor and remembrances of visiting your kennels. Beautiful collection of Scottie art work and warm hospitality. Then off to the oldest pub in England, complete with a burning fireplace. Onward to St. Albans Cathedral and then Blenheim Palace. (It was mentioned that the Americans would have probably constructed a Wal Mart on such spacious grounds—sorry). There was time for a quick dinner before the theater in Windsor and then a brisk walk to the Wren House.

Tuesday, March 14

Morning at Harrods in London, too grand to enumerate. For me, "a little taste of heaven." After lunch, a hop-on-hop-off sightseeing bus tour of London. The guide told us the history of the streets, buildings and nursery rhymes, plus many stories of London. The afternoon was spent at the 900 year old Tower of London and viewing the eye popping crown jewels.

Wednesday, March 15

8:30 a.m. - seminars began from Mrs. Jernhake from Sweden, who judged the STBEA Championship Show, followed by Mr. Malcolm

The Group

Lewis, Wales, the Scottie judge for the upcoming Crufts show. We have definitely been schooled by the best. After the seminars, we boarded a bus for Covent Gardens, open-air cafes, street entertainers, stylish shops and food markets. Our evening ended at the Adelphi theater and the award winning production "Sunset Boulevard."

Thursday, March 16

First to Westminster Abbey and St. Paul Cathedral, then off to Harrods and some SERIOUS shopping. We have a cool coach driver. He said that he would be departing London with or without us to an informal buffet dinner at their home, relaxing, visiting with the English breeders and friends in front of the fireplace and with a Scottie or two in our laps. The evening was delightful. It included videos, pictures, music and a bagpiper played as we entered and as we departed. Such a beautiful evening, with beautiful people.

Friday, March 17

The British Museum and the British Library and the world famous Madame Trussaud's Wax Museum. We were on our own for dinner. By this time, we had a favorite pub/restaurant. Tomorrow is our last day in the U.K. and the big Crufts show. Early to bed and early to rise. We decided that our group would be called "the traveling diehards-95."

Crufts 1995 Best of Breed; Ch. Kentwella Rob Roy

Saturday, March 18

Crufts - the coach departed at 6 a.m. Upon entering the Crufts area (Crufts is at the National Exhibition Centre in Birmingham), you see big billboard advertising the show, kennels, vendors and acres of parking. A bus would drop us at the entrance and we made plans to meet there at 5:30 for departure. Kathy gave us overseas visitor passes for complimentary rest stops, refreshments, Crufts catalogue and we were off.

Crufts is a celebration like the 4th of July or New Year's at Time Square or one of the mammoth occasions no-one can explain and one never forgets. The vendors were scattered throughout the arena from different European countries. As you left one area you entered a whole block of food shops and, of course, the main purpose -160 different breeds, totaling an entry of 20,000 beloved canines. We were pleased to see the American bred (Barbara and John DeSaye) Ch. Sandgreg's English Garden at Stuan placed Res. C.C. bitch to BB Ch. Kentwella Rob Roy. We had ringside seats to watch Mr. Lewis judge the Scotties and then ringside seats for the finale, the Group, and this time the winner was a Welsh Terrier.

We arrived at Wren House, made reservations for dinner and we all sat around and enjoyed the company of our newly found friends. We are not the same as when we came and our friendships are surely in the hands of tomorrow.

Canine Cushing's Disease

By William E. Schultz, D.V.M.

First described in humans in 1932 by Dr. Harvey Cushing, the disease was originally thought to be a disorder of only the pituitary gland. Later studies showed "Cushing's Disease" as being caused by multiple factors. Canine Cushing's Disease (CCD) and Canine Cushing's Syndrome (CCS), all types of hyperadrenocorticism, have multiple pathophysiologic origins. The hallmark of the disease process is an overproduction of cortisol by the adrenal glands. Cortisol is a type of steroid produced by the adrenal gland which is necessary for normal body functions. Overproduction of cortisol causes many changes to normal metabolism. Some of the changes are readily apparent and some are very difficult to interpret. Onset is usually subtle with diagnosis often not made until quite late in the disorder. Hopefully, this article will allow some insight which may result in a more rapid diagnosis and earlier therapy.

Veterinary medicine recognizes three main types of hyperadrenocorticism.

I. Canine Cushing's Disease (CCD) - Pituitary dependent hyperadrenocorticism (PDH) is caused by the presence of a tumor in the pituitary gland. The tumor secretes an increased amount of adrenocorticotrophic hormone (ACTH) causing the adrenal glands (small glands near the kidneys) to increase their output of cortisol. The tumor in the pituitary gland is small and rarely are other signs of the tumor seen. PDH represents 80% to 85% of naturally occurring hyperadrenocorticism in dogs. According to the fourth edition of the Textbook of Veterinary Internal Medicine by Ettinger and Feldman, 1995, the top four affected breeds are Poodles, Dachshunds, Terriers and Beagles. About 75% of dogs with PDH weigh less than 20kg.

II. Iatrogenic Cushing's Syndrome - This type of Cushing's is secondary to use of steroids taken orally or by injection.

tion. The most frequent reason for steroid therapy is allergic dermatitis. Chronic usage will eventually cause the adrenal glands to atrophy, allowing the administered steroids to cause the clinical signs of hyperadrenocorticism. Attempts at desensitization and control of dermatitis without steroid usage can totally prevent this form of Cushing's. There is no weight predisposition for iatrogenic Cushing's Syndrome.

III. Adrenal Gland Tumors - Several types of tumors can grow in the adrenal gland. Both cancerous or benign tumors may be present. The types are beyond the scope of this article, but it is important to know that tumors may be a cause of Canine Cushing's Syndrome. Forty-five percent to 50% of dogs with adrenocortical tumors weigh greater than 20kg.

The three types of Cushing's all have one common factor - the presence of elevated cortisol. Cortisol causes similar signs in all cases and a complete history, physical exam and laboratory test results will usually lead to a diagnosis. The testing is not 100% accurate and, therefore, it may be necessary to run several tests before a correct diagnosis is accomplished. Factors involved in diagnosis are multiple and, in many cases, only one or two signs may be present, while, in other cases, the signs may be overwhelming. Many of the following statistics are from the Textbook of Veterinary Internal Medicine and some may be anecdotal from 22 years of practice.

Age—usually older than 6 years—75% are older than 9 years for PDH, while dogs with tumors of the adrenal gland tend to be older.

Sex—55% to 60% of PDH are female and 60% to 65% of adrenal tumor dogs are female.

Breed—smaller breeds (listed above) tend to get PDH, while adrenal tumors tend to develop in larger dogs.

History—this is a disease with a slow onset and clinical problems are few in the initial stages. Frequently, the owner suspects diabetes or other skin-related problems.

Physical findings—Increased thirst and increased appetite are very common findings. It is important to note that several signs of Cushing's may be normal behavior traits. Our Golden Retriever would eat any amount of food given as fast as possible, and, if not dieted, would be enormous. Because many of the dogs with Cushing's have such an excellent appetite, owners are reluctant to think that their dog is ill and tolerate many physical changes before concerns are great enough to have the dog checked.

Increased thirst and increased urine output are common findings. With Cushing's, the urine is often very dilute and a simple urine specific gravity may be done as an initial screening test. It is strongly recommended that a refractometer and not urine dip sticks be used to determine the concentration of the urine. As with many of the tests, if this test is normal, but the disease is still questioned, more thorough testing is necessary. Urinary cortisol/creatinine testing is easily done and is a very good initial test, but it is also not specific. If the test is elevated, usually other testing is necessary.

A large distended (potty) abdomen and muscle weakness are seen in many advanced cases. The dog may develop an extremely potty abdomen. This sign is in as many as 80% to 90% of the cases. Many cases are first seen because the owners think they appear obese when, in reality, the abdomen looks larger due to muscle weakness and the extremities are actually much thinner from muscle wasting. Weakness, often a presenting sign, may be a sign that develops after treatment. The disease causes an increase in cortisol that helps to keep inflammation out of old arthritic joints. Treatment reduces the unwanted cortisol and may exacerbate signs of joint disease.

Several signs may be present in the skin to lead to a presumptive diagnosis of Cushing's. As many as 100% of the affected dogs will have some type of dermatological signs with up to 80% having alopecia (hair loss). Alopecia is usually evident in the flanks, sides of abdomen and around the anal area. The hair loss usually has bilateral symmetry (the same on both sides). Poor re-growth of shaved areas, or re-growth with brittle sparse hair must be considered as clinical signs. Thin cool skin and infections like pyoderma or seborrhea may also be present. Calcium deposits in the skin (calcinosis cutis), which may feel firm to the touch, may occur in the head and dorsal neck area, ventral abdomen and flanks. These deposits appear slightly raised and may be whitish to light pink with areas being quite small to very large.

Rapid breathing may be noted, but usually no cough is present. The respiratory difficulties may be related to enlargement of the liver putting pressure on the cardiopulmonary areas. Because small breeds may be affected, coughing may be present due to a collapsing trachea.

Many tests may be used to differentiate Cushing's from other endocrine disorders - urine testing has been noted. Ultrasonography and radiology may image enlarged or calcium containing adrenal glands. Protocol for blood tests taken which use injections of ACTH and/or Dexamethasone can be found in veterinary textbooks. If you suspect Cushing's may be present and only one test has been done, it may be imperative to request further testing. If your veterinarian is not familiar with other testing methods, a veterinary teaching hospital or specialist may be necessary.

PDH cases may be treated with oral medication - the protocol may vary according to practitioners, but the attempt is made to decrease the output of cortisol by the adrenal gland without completely stopping cortisol production. Timing meals or measuring water intake may be used in determining initial treatment end-point and used as factors to determine the maintenance dose.

Patience must be used during therapy - each case is different. If initial results are not gratifying, or if the attending veterinarian gets frustrated, it may be necessary to start over with another protocol or another veterinarian.

Iatrogenic Cushing's Syndrome which is caused by excess oral or injectable steroids may often be helped by cessation of the steroid therapy and diet changes. Long term prognosis is poor.

Adrenal tumors, if in only one adrenal gland, may respond to surgical intervention. The possibility that cancerous tumors may have already spread to other organs necessitates a thorough pre-surgical work-up.

Education and Health Committee

By Gail Gaines

Well, the survey is out!! Hopefully, everyone has done his own and passed out surveys to people who have their Scottie pups. If you have not returned your survey yet, do it as soon as possible so it can be counted in the statistical data.

Special accolades to Sue Martin, who had worked on this project intensively for the past six months or more. She looked at numerous types of surveys and put together one she felt met our needs. She has worked with the Education and Health Committee, Dr. George Padgett, the Board and the Health Trust Fund. The survey was a major project for the Health Trust Fund. We had two other major contributions: one, by an anonymous contributor, of the funds for mailing the survey under its own cover and not in combination with other mailings, and the other, by Mr. Russ Somma, who provided printing of the forms. Thank you for both of these generous contributions. They saved considerable funds.

Mrs. Jennie Willis agreed to the collection and removal of envelopes to ensure anonymity. She also catalogued the regions of the country from which a response was received! She does not even own a Scottie.

Last, but not least, we appreciate the time and energy you devoted to getting the surveys done and returned. We will look forward to Dr. Padgett's report at Montgomery County, October 5, 1995.

We are about four-fifths of the way to getting the Scottie-Phile computerized. Bonnie Lamphear and her band of typists, proofreaders and computer literates have put in enumerable hours on this project and it is nearing completion. They are hard at work devising a system whereby those who would like to be able to access information via computer disc may do so. We are also going to be connecting with other terrier breeds to let them know of this service and to see if we need to work with other groups with similar services. Daphne Branzell will be signing on as Bonnie's right hand for this project.

There have continued to be so many questions about Cushing's that I decided to include another article with a somewhat different emphasis by Dr. William Schultz, D.V.M. We are very appreciative of his taking the time to write this article for us. □

Health Trust Fund

A Pledge For Scottish Terrier Health Today

by Jane Phelan

The Health Trust Fund was formally established in October, 1994, by the STCA. The initial monies for this Trust, approximately $8,000.00, was raised at a flea market held on the October, 1993, National Specialty Weekend. This was a great beginning! But if the Health Trust is to achieve permanence and indeed be instrumental in not only the identifying but influencing the solution of health problems affecting the breed, then it must be a living thing. A continual stream of monies coming into the Trust is needed. Not just enough to replace those currently being spent. The assets of the Trust must be sufficiently large in order that research grants can be considered for appropriate projects, in order that educational seminars can be expanded to regional specialty shows, in order that up to date information can be made available on particular problems to individuals in a timely manner, perhaps via computer network, and perhaps surely for projects not yet conceived.

Trustee, Antonella Visconti di Modrone, has accepted the task of coordinating the funding for the Trust. She is being ably assisted by Russ Somma, for corporate donations, and by other STCA members in the regional clubs. In the following open letter to all STCA members, Antonella offers ideas for ways that members may consider in supporting the Trust. Please give serious thought to any, or all in the planning of your contribution.

If the Trust Fund is to be a permanent long-term entity that is effective in promoting the health and well-being of our beloved 'diehard', it needs the support of every Scottie owner. □

Dear fellow breeders and lovers of the Scottish Terrier breed,

As most of you know, the S.T.C.A. Health Trust Fund, a non-profit organization, has been created, its purpose being the following:

1. Detect and investigate health problems.
2. Monitor health in Scottish Terriers.
3. Participate in research to enhance prevention of illness.
4. Develop and advocate sound breeding practices.
5. Foster safe and health environments.
6. Study and share information that promotes better health in all purebred dogs.

7. Promote and encourage constructive attitudes toward health concerns.

We have already started some programs. At Montgomery County, we had Dr. George Padgett of Michigan State University talk to us about genetics.

This coming June, at the Rotating specialty, Dr. Kenneth Meyers of Washington State University will discuss research on Scotty cramp, and Muriel Lee will have a program on whelping and rearing of puppies.

A survey was sent out in April to all S.T.C.A. members and Scottie breeders. We are asking that all of you take the time to answer with extreme honesty concerning the health problems you are facing in your breeding programs. This survey will be strictly confidential and will not ask for kennel or breeders names.

We are hoping that if everyone participates, we will have a way of finding out what the major problems are afflicting our breed today, and that with the right advice from the right people, we will be able to produce sound, healthy dogs that will keep our wonderful breed in good shape for future generations. Please let us all work together with the sole objective of the health and welfare of our Scotties!!!

In order to be able to offer quality programs with the help of top specialists in the veterinary and genetics fields, our health trust fund needs a steady flow of money coming in on a yearly basis. Our goal is $5,000 and over. I have been asked to be in charge of "raising funds" and I am asking if you are willing to help in this endeavor. The following are some suggestions:

Will you consider as a breeder donating $10.00 for each puppy you sell?

And/Or,

Will you as a devoted Scottie owner consider donating to the fund $20/50/100 or more on a yearly basis?

And/Or,

Will you consider a donation in memory of a beloved pet that has passed away?

And/Or,

Will you like to donate a certain sum to honor a particular dog that has been the foundation of your breeding program?

And/Or,

Will you ask your vet for a yearly donation in favor of the trust?

And/Or,

Will you consider a donation of money in memory of a friend who loved Scotties and is no longer here?

And/Or,

Will you consider remembering the Health Trust Fund in your will?

And/Or,

Will your regional club consider donating a very small portion of its income to this Trust?

And/Or,

Will each one of you be willing to raise funds from businesses and people you know?

These are all suggestions that have come to my mind at this time. You probably will have other ideas and better ones. Do not hesitate to let me know or our representatives in your club know about them.

Let us all work together as generously as possible for the health and well being of our wonderful breed.

Thank you.

The Publick House in Chester, NJ, served as the site for our annual dinner meeting on April 2, 1995. STCGNY members and guests successfully mixed business with pleasure to produce a memorable social event. Thank you to dinner chairperson Cynthia Urban for planning a beautiful affair.

Annual awards were presented to members who ranked at the top of individual categories based on show results published in the AKC Awards for 1994.

The following slate of officers were elected by the membership to serve in 1995: President: Russ Somma, Vice President: Karen Hansen, Secretary: Nan Barcan, Treasurer: Bill Berry, Board of Directors: Marlene Burgess, Michael Cerone, Liz Heywood, Bill deVilleneuve and Ann Frankewich.

Susan Finn and STCGNY presented the Woodbridge Public Library (site of the majority of our club meetings) with a set of AKC Public Education Videos as a token of our appreciation for use of their facilities.

We look forward to our 18th Annual Specialty Show to be held Sunday May 7, 1995, in conjunction with the Trenton Kennel Club. Ms. Maxine Beam will judge the classes and sweepstakes will be judged by Mr. William Berry.

Results will be announced in the next issue of The Bagpiper.

Our Annual Awards dinner and election of officers was held Saturday, April 22, 1995. We had Pot Luck Buffet and what a feast!!!!!! Awards were presented to club members for their 1994 Champions.

After dinner we enjoyed an excellent talk by Dr. Will Schultz. We are hard at work on our Annual Fun Match which will be held in the month of June. In July we will host a swim party and buffet at Evelyn and Frank Morrow's. Frank will teach us all CPR, which, hopefully we will never have to use - but it is always better to be prepared. Also AKC has suggested that we have someone at functions who is qualified to render CPR and/or emergency medical training.

In September we will have our Annual Specialty. Our regular class judge will be Mrs. Sandra Goose Allen. Our sweepstakes judge will be Miss Marteen Nolan. Hope to see you all in September.

Have a safe and happy Summer!

We held a fun match with the Cairn Terrier Club to help defray the costs and share in any income we may receive. In conjunction with the match, we had a dress contest both for the exhibitor and the dog. Best in Match was Charthill Sandy Shore owned by Glenda and Paul Bruneau and Charla Hill.

Our awards dinner will be held June 3, 1995 at the home of Linda Terry.

At our April meeting, we had the opportunity to view the new AKC release of the Scottish Terrier Breed video, it was informative and very well done.

We are working on putting together an information packet for new owners and breeders. If any other clubs have items that they think may be helpful, we would appreciate it if you could send them to us.

Hope everyone has a good summer and good luck to everyone who is showing their Scots.

STCGW began 1995 with two meetings focusing on canine health issues. Dr. Lisa Fulton, DVM, gave us an excellent presentation on canine oncology. Since 45% of all older dogs, and many of our dear Scots, are dying from various forms of cancer, her presentation was both timely and informative. After a business meeting, our April 7th event was a slide discussion by Dr. Marilyn Khoury, DVM, on canine dentistry. She had several practical suggestions. Early brushing for prevention, no hard chew toys except maybe rawhide versions, and regular inspection of the mouth will aid in proper oral care. Their practice is using a new Hill's "tooth diet" product that looks like charcoal briquettes, with good success on dogs requiring frequent professional cleaning.

Chairperson Letty Passig is pleased to announce that we have a respectable 18 entries for our Second Annual AKC Sanctioned Obedience Trial. The event took place on April 21st and was judged by Mr. Edward Whitney. The results will be reported in the next issue. Our obedience group meets on a weekly basis and the club is very proud of their accomplishments.

Plans are underway for our Annual Agility Fund Raiser which is held the first weekend in May. Our dogs get a great workout on the agility equipment and we are reminded how out of shape the two legged participants have become.

We anticipate a good turnout at our two June events. The Springfield Trial includes both go-to-ground and racing events. This is a well attended club favorite. The following weekend, club member Virginia Fairbanks host our Fun Match. This B and OB Match helps us prepare for both the show and obedience rings.

Late breaking news...STCGW has been approved by AKC to hold a licensed Earth Dog Test. We are very excited and have already picked the weekend of September 23rd and 24th to hold what we hope will become a yearly event. Now we must recruit some serious work force, complete with shovels.

Don't forget our Specialty Show, happening on our traditional weekend at a great new location. The new address is 1900 Arlington Blvd. (Route 50), in Fairfax, VA. This is a great new site with lots of space for parking, grooming, you name it. Come join us.

If you and your Scottie spent the St. Patrick's day cheering your favorite teams, you missed the real March Madness - you missed the 22nd annual Heart of America Scottish Terrier Club Specialty and Sweepstakes.

Promptly at 2 pm, Ring Stewards Mel and Jo Musson called "Puppy dogs 6-9 months," and Judge, Mr. John Sheehan began his work of judging the twenty-two young Scots.

Best in Sweeps went to Anstamm Atta Girl, owners: D. Strong and Anstamm Kennels.

Regular class Judge, Mrs. Ann Wanner walked into the ring at 3 pm to select winners from the fifty entries. Her selections were: Best of Breed, CH Caevnes Devil Due, owners: Robert and Jane Phelan; Best of Opposite Sex, CH Sodak Society Bare, owners: Scott and Susan Jacobson; WD/BW, Anstamm Outrageous, owners: Anstamm Kennels; WB, Ard Talam Wildfire, owners: Edward and Tina Sadovsky.

Friday evening the club held a delicious reception at the Drury Inn. After the show on Saturday, the Golden Ox restaurant was the scene of our grand finale. Awards were given to club members who finished dogs in 1994.

After the silent auction and a BIG round of applause for Earle Teegarden, show chairman and his hard working behind-the-scene's committee, we waved goodbye to friends and made a promise to "see you next year."

A grooming seminar is planned for July 22 and 23, 1995. Michael J. Cook will conduct this two day event to be held at Wyandotte County Fairgrounds, Kansas City, Kansas. The cost is $55.00 with dogs/$25.00 Observation Only. For further information please contact Theresa Duncan, Rt. 5, Box 518-2, Springfield, Mo 65803 or 417/742-5285.

Yes, there really will be a Houston Specialty in '95. Astroshows finally has settled into its new show dates in mid-July. STCGH will be part of Astroshows once again.

The STCGH Specialty will be Friday, July 14, with Houston Kennel Club. Wychwood Scottish Terrier's Fred Ferris, Middletown, CT, will judge regular classes. Two all-breed shows (Beaumont Kennel Club and Galveston Kennel Club) will follow July 15 and 16.

To advertise our new and getting-very-close Specialty date, STCGH invited exhibitors at the Dallas Specialty shows to an informal social after judging. We had a good time. Come join us

We kicked off our Spring activities with a wonderful grooming seminar on March 25th, presented by master trimmer Tom Natalini. He kept a record crowd of 49+ captivated, from first-timers to Best in Show winners. He covered a variety of topics including honestly faulting your dog, enhancing the head, rolling the coat, dealing with problems and much more. We are very grateful to Tom for taking time out of his busy handling schedule to share his expertise with us. Donna Cone provided a delicious box lunch and everyone left with a packet of instructions for following up Tom's tutoring at home.

Our Spring Match and Terrier Races was held on April 29th at the Bedford V.A. Hospital grounds in Bedford, MA. Judging began at 1:00 pm with the very popular races following. So hotly contested are the race events that contestants traveled from throughout New England to compete! Once again we featured a "Rescue Parade" in which those loving people who have saved the life of a homeless Scottie could receive the thanks and recognition they so deserved.

The jewel in our Spring series of Scottie activities is, of course, our Annual Specialty, to be held this year on June 2nd at the Bedford V.A. Hospital grounds. Mr Stuart Plane, of the famed Tuane Kennels in England, will judge the classes and Miss Robin Starr will judge Sweepstakes. Ours is an independent specialty and is followed on Saturday by Ladies Dog Club and on Sunday by Framingham District, so plan to join us for a three-show weekend. Contact John McNabney at (203)485-9127 for more information. Judging will be followed by a catered buffet featuring spit-roasted New York Sirloin with Bordelaise or Wild Mushroom Sauce and spit-roasted Garlic-Lime-Cilantro Marinated Turkey with Cranberry Tarragon Sauce or Pineapple Salsa, accompanied by salad, rolls and butter, vegetables and an assortment of Margaret Blair's delectable homemade desserts. The price is a very reasonable $20.00 and reservations can be made by calling Donna Cone at (603) 644-7127 by May 25th. Our headquarters hotel, with Hospitality Room, is the Holiday Inn Express, 440 Bedford St., Lexington, MA 02173, ph. (617) 861-0850 or 1-800-HOLIDAY. We have reserved a block of rooms at a special price of $59.00 double plus tax. Mention STCNE and make reservations by May 25th. This hotel features a complimentary continental breakfast, outdoor pool and guided tours of Boston which is only 16 miles distant. The hotel is also only 17 miles from Logan Airport and is convenient to all major highways, being at exit 31B of I 95. Call Donna if you need more infor-

It was a big Specialty, Texas-sized. GDSTC's 18th annual Specialty attracted a smashing group of Scotties from the far corners of the U.S. The club was pleased to welcome all the people who brought their Scots from both coasts and the American heartland. Balachan Scottish Terriers' Mrs. Evelyn Kirk, Roanoke, VA, drew an entry of 53, including a remarkable 25 class bitches. Sweepstakes judge, Fred Brooks, Brookwood Scottish Terriers, Strafford, MO, drew 20 puppies. Winners were: Best in Sweepstakes, Owyn Las Tinajas, owners: Carole and Ray Owen. WD/BW, Caevnes Red Headed Stranger, owners: Robert and Jane Phelan and Renee Stolz; WB, J Branigan Second Hand Heart, owner: Dr. Jeffrey Scheer; BOS, CH Sandgreg's Liberty Belle, owners: Bettie Gooch and Barbara DeSaye, and BOB, CH Caevnes Devils Due, owners: Robert and Jane Phelan.

Trophies were unusual verdigris brassware, ranging from a huge birds-on-a-branch art piece for BOB down to lily leaf candle holders and crystal votives for class prizes. Show chairman was Tom Beaman, and our ever capable ring stewards were Marshall and Daphne Branzell. After judging, Texas hospitality turned Euro-spicy with an array of Italiano specialties at the post Specialty hospitality suite. Ridgela Country Club's food just keeps pulling us back year after year for our Specialty banquet. The evening honored Specialty winners of the previous day and GDSTC's members who had completed champions the previous year. GDSTC thanks Sweepstakes judge Fred Brooks for his announcement at the banquet of donations he and wife Patty are making in the name of GDSTC to the STCA's new Health Trust Fund and the Dog Museum of America.

Tom Beaman's Specialty auctions are always rousing affairs. Biggest dollar booster to Specialty fund-raising was the record banquet auction at which Beaman coaxed bidding that totaled buys of $2,000. High dollar item was a framed Saturday Evening Post Scottie Easter cover from 1933 which brought $120. Other framed antique prints, a Norman Rockwell Scottie plate, a vintage suitcase stamped with dog decals and lined with Scottie fabric, a one-of-a-kind Scottie doll, Scottie nightshirts, etc., were a few of the unique auction items. Setting the banquet's Easter theme were ceramic Scottie centerpieces and porcelain Scottie Easter egg favors made by Lana and Tia Gerdock. Ways and means sales of Scottie notecards, extra Easter eggs and brass egg holders, plus $400 in raffle tickets boosted banquet receipts even higher. Lynn Seyler won the raffle's heirloom quality Scottie crossstitch and tartan-appliqued Scottie bellpull designed and made by GDSTC member Donna Winslow.

One specialty a year has been so much fun, GDSTC is adding a second! Our first winter Specialty has been approved for December 9. Come be a Snowbird.

Newly elected GDSTC officers for 1995 are: Leland Thomas, president; Carla LaCoe, Vice-president; Jan Beaman, recording secretary; Connie Smith, corresponding secretary; Jane Phelan, treasurer; and directors Allene Haldy, Tom Langham, and Lana Gerdock.

Preparations are well under way for the two Specialties in June. The GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY Regional Specialty is June 9th and the STCA Rotating Specialty is the next day June 10th. All committees are working well together and have everything in order. A good time should be had by everyone.

Christine Stephens helped us get our puppies and adult Scots ready by conducting a two-day grooming seminar on April 1st and 2nd. At that seminar five Scotty owners decided to submit club membership applications. Irene Do Rozario and Eileen Childress (Seminar chairperson) had a delicious lunch for all the aspiring groomers.

On April 8th Vandra Huber, Match Chairperson, had a successful day with NO RAIN! For the first time for our club a Canine Good Citizenship Test was conducted by Margie Vinciguerra, Julie Bare and Florence Hicks. Four dogs passed and a good time was had by all attendees and as usual, Irene Do Rozario put on a great lunch.

Our Secretary, Jenene Schadler, passed away December 21, 1994. Jenene was a member of STCGD since 1980. She was very dedicated and devoted to the Scottish Terrier. She was very interested in the health and welfare of the breed. She was always ready to give a helping hand. Jenene was a retired registered nurse and had been active on the national level. Jenene will be missed very much by all of her friends and her Scotties.

Excellent programs have provided interest and insight into Scottie/animal health and welfare. Vet Joseph Deck made an excellent presentation concerning canine Cushing's Syndrome, a hormonal disease in dogs, and explained three common conditions/causes.

The Animal Care Society, a non-profit adoption agency dedicated to finding new loving homes for pets in need, presented an outstanding program concerning its work. The Society, housed in a great facility built in 1989, can accommodate approximately 30 animals. Because of the limited space and because they do not practice euthanasia, a pet's age, temperament and health are factors the Society must assess prior to accepting for placement. For pets not taken in, the group maintains a referral listing, as well as a list of people seeking to adopt.

Donna Heriz, an attorney and exhibitor, discussed a detailed look at animal legislation at the local, state and national levels. She encouraged an informed and involved approach for the club and the individual membership concerns, ideas and input need, to be given to the legislators.

Three new Scottie advocates have been added to the membership. Each new member brings special skills which will enrich the club's endeavors.

Leslie "Dan" Stickler, Rescue Chair, has successfully placed two rescue dogs.

STCGL's Kentucky Scottish Weekend Sanctioned "B" Match was held Saturday, May 14, at General Butler State Park in Carrollton KY. Kari Hill judged the great entries. Naturally the puppies are always great to see but so was the great parade of Champions, Parade of Pets and the Best Dressed Parade. Kari was wonderful and flexible in making all the decisions.

Mark your calendar, get out the map and pack your bags for the Specialty. The STCGL will host its 10th Annual Specialty on Saturday, August 26, 1995. Location will be the Holiday Inn located on Fern Valley Rd, off of I-65. Sweeps judge will be Robert Moore of Ashton, MD (Ashmoor) and regular classes will be judged by Bruce

Owners, Handlers, and Show Persons BEWARE

By Arthur and Marcia Wolfe

2035 Falkner Place
Oxnard, CA 93030

Somehow, unscrupulous companies are able to obtain credit card information and charge unauthorized fees to credit cards. These are entry service businesses that handle your entries and forward them to the show superintendents. They are not the superintendents themselves.

We were contacted the other day by one of these firms and told we owed a certain amount of money for "membership renewal." They had already charged these fees to another person's credit card, in our name. We do not have any credit cards, and we hadn't even heard of this entry service. We had once used another person's credit card number to make a late show entry, but it sure wasn't to this particular business. After making a few telephone calls to other show people, we discovered that this is not a one-time occurrence. Other people from different parts of the country have experienced the same thing. We'll leave it to your imagination to determine how the names and numbers showed up at the wrong places. Some people will do almost anything for money these days.

We don't wish to imply that all of these entry services are working in the grey area. Most of them offer a valuable service and are totally dependable. We just want to say, check your receipts a lot closer and report any unusual charges to your credit card company. Maybe if we work together, we can rid the show circuit of this problem.

We have contacted the AKC, the credit card company, our local Better Business Bureau and District Attorney's office to see if we can get enough support to file a class action lawsuit against this particular business. If anyone would like more information, our telephone number is (805)486-8461. □

A Love Letter

By Lee Netzler

April 21, 1995. This tells the final story of my close companionship with Piper (Jo-Dens Highland Piper, C.D.), my best friend of many years. I lost him a year ago this month.

Thursday, August 25, 1995

Dear Mom,

Hope that you are well.

Yesterday I hiked Mount Audubon. I went up with Piper and came home alone.

The alarm went off at 5 a.m. I got up and shaved and showered and dressed. Then I loaded a small drink cooler and my backpack, which I had readied the previous evening, into the Jeep. Filled up the gas tank on the way to Aunt Alice's restaurant.

After breakfast it took an hour to drive up to the Indian Peaks Wilderness Area. As the road began to climb into the foothills, a big orange-red sun was rising on the horizon behind me, a spectacular sight even in the rear view mirror. Passing Brainard Lake, we saw one lone fisherman casting flies. I drove a mile further to the trail head and parked. Got the canteen from the cooler, hoisted my pack onto my back, and we started out on the trail to Mount Audubon at 7:15 a.m.

It is about a 3 3/4 mile hike to the top of Mount Audubon. The trail begins at 10,480 feet above sea level and the summit is at 13,223 feet, so the elevation gain is something over 2,700 feet.

The weather was absolutely perfect. The temperature was in the low 50's and there was no breeze whatsoever. The sky was mostly covered with a transparent overcast, and the sun was already half shielded. I considered wearing my jacket, but didn't, because I knew that soon my efforts against the continual incline of the trail would keep me warm.

The first mile of the hike is through thick forest, and I went hatless. When a pine cone bounced off the top of my head, I took a couple of minutes to rest and watch a squirrel at the very top of a tall slender pine tree as he cut several cones loose to fall around me. I knew that later he would descent and eat a few, but would cache most of them for the coming winter.

After the first mile the trail approaches tree line at about 11,200 feet. Near tree limit I startled a pika foraging next to the trail, and it scurried away. I stopped to watch and it returned, and not too cautiously, either. As I stood quietly, it nibbled at the grass about six feet away.

At 1 1/2 miles, the trail to Mount

Audubon splits from the Buchanan Pass Trail. The route to Audubon continues unceasingly upward across the rocks and the tundra, and, from this point forward, it winds higher and higher above the tree line.

A short distance past the junction, a small melt-off rivulet from a permanent snow field located further up the mountain crosses the trail. Nearly an hour into the hike, we stopped there for a 5 minute rest. The water was crystal clear and very, very cold. I soaked my handkerchief and swabbed my face several times. Then, I soaked it again and tucked it around my neck inside my shirt, dripping wet. It was 8:15 when we set out again.

A cool breeze began to blow, which continued on the tundra throughout the rest of the hike. It counteracted the warming of the sun well enough. Where the pack rested against my back, my shirt was constantly soaked with sweat but, otherwise, I was comfortable.

After hiking continuously, except for short pauses to regain my breath, we stopped again where the water from a small ground spring crosses the trail. I repeated the cooling process with my handkerchief. There were Arctic Gentians, deep blue flowers tinged with green, starting to blossom near the water. It was 9:10 when we started again.

About a half hour later, we reached the base of the summit area. It is a huge dome-shaped cap which consists of a massive collection of steeply piled boulders. From there, the route to the top is perhaps a third of a mile long, but the pitch of the slope generally requires a hiker to move forward in a continual crouch, scrambling from rock to rock. It is not dangerous, but steep enough so that walking upright isn't possible much of the way. The elevation gain from the base of the slope to the top of Mount Audubon is about 500 feet. Without resting, we started up.

After a period of steady progress, we reached a small level area which was about a 10 minute hike from the summit. I stopped there, as I had been planning to do. While we paused, I thought about the many, many previous hikes that Piper and I had done together. I talked to him about them, just as I had talked to him throughout the morning as we worked our way up the trail to this small resting place. I let him know how I felt and that there wasn't anything much better that could happen to a person in life than sharing company with a good dog. I drank a can of pop from my pack and put my gear in order. After about 10 minutes, I got myself together and we set out to complete the short distance to the summit.

We arrived at the top of Mount Audubon at 10:20. A brisk breeze was blowing. It was cool, but pleasant. I dropped my pack and took out the pictures of our first hike together to this summit nine years ago. I cried a lot. I was glad we were alone, because, for a time, I wailed at the top of my lungs and just couldn't stop.

I hugged him and said everything I could think of to say to him, and then I sent his ashes flying free with many sweeps of my hands. I sat there by myself for a while and then gathered up my things and started down. It was 10:40.

The trip down was more numb stumbling along than it was a hike. As I reached the base of the dome area, I met two ladies, both in their mid-20's, hiking up with a beautiful Irish Setter. I stopped them and asked a favor -- "Could I please pet your dog?" They saw my tears and distress and, although surprised by that, they tried to console me.

The dog's name was Ruby. She was perhaps three or four years old, very well behaved, and friendly. I petted her for several minutes, all the while explaining to them why I was so upset. I showed them Piper's pictures. When I left them, they were crying nearly as much as me, but I know they felt a whole lot better about having Ruby than they did a few minutes earlier.

I passed some other uphill hikers in the next mile or so. I exchanged polite greetings without slowing down.

Further ahead, I noticed a man and a woman stopped on the trail. They had two chocolate-colored Labradors with them, which were prancing around and playing. As I approached, I could see that the couple would alternately drink from their canteens and then tip them so that the dogs could drink from them as well.

Their fussing and concern over their dogs really struck me and I was crying pretty hard by the time I reached them. It took a few minutes before I could talk, but, when I was finally able to explain myself, they were both very comforting.

"Montana" was the oldest Lab, probably seven or eight, and the other was their "new" dog, maybe a year old. The couple appeared to be in their early 30's, and, although they told me all of their names, I just wasn't listening and only remember "Montana." While trying to console me, the lady told me that neither of them was interested in having children and that their dogs were their "kids." They seemed to understand me and were not bothered by my tears.

When I was a little more composed, they asked me about my dog and I showed them Piper's pictures and told them about him. They had hiked Mount Audubon previously and were familiar with it. The lady was enthusiastic about what I had done. She said it was well thought out and appropriate - "What a great idea" was the way she put it. We talked a little longer and, when I got myself somewhat collected, I hugged the Labs, thanked the couple for their understanding, and continued down the trail.

About 300 yards further along, I heard a short "chirp-cooing" sound. I stopped and listened, already knowing what it was. After a brief silence, the sound repeated, and was soon joined by other chirps. I kept looking, seeing nothing, until finally one of the creatures moved. They were White-Tailed Ptarmigans, year-round residents of the tundra and rarely-seen members of the grouse family, camouflaged to near invisibility by their brown-speckled coats. There were four of them, one slightly larger than the others, so I guessed that it was a hen with three chicks. Two were beside me, about 30 to 40 feet from the trail. The other two were below me on the trail, perhaps 50 feet ahead.

I stood motionless. The two below me on the trail started uphill to rejoin the others. One left the trail to pass well clear of me but the other came directly toward me up the trail. Clearly, it knew I was there but was curious. It approached very slowly and very deliberately, taking each step with great care, as it came to investigate me. It kept looking me over, thoroughly examining me all the while it advanced. I stood perfectly still, moving nothing except my eyes to study the bird.

It had marvelously random multi-colored feather patterns. The head and neck were mostly small brown dots, line patterns, and mottling against white. The wings, back and most of the tail feathers displayed dots, lines, mottling, patches and patterned mixtures in every possible shade of brown with touches of gray and white. Unbelievably, they also contained subdued splashes of orange. It had a white lower chest and belly, and the "signature" feature of the species was strikingly clear - the pure white softly feathered legs and feet completely covered except for the claw nail at the end of each toe. The eyes were black and the beak color deepened from gray to a dark blue near the tip. The final dazzling color that I saw was a thin line above each eye - bright orange, like a brash stroke of gaudy eyeliner. The bird passed two feet from me, and I could easily have bent over and stroked it without moving a foot. I waited until the birds had moved away, then continued downhill.

I passed the Buchanan Trail junction and re-entered the forest. The trees thickened again as I reached the flatter ground. The last mile seemed very long and I realized that I was extremely tired. I tripped and fell once, just as I had on the way up, but without any damage.

At 12:55 p.m., I reached the parking area. I lifted off my pack and canteen and, after a long drink, stowed them in the Jeep. The hike was finished. It was the hardest hike I've ever done.

Please take care, Mom. I will try to write again soon.

Love, Lee

A Bunch of Losers

By Carole Fry Owen

Copyright 1995 Carole Fry Owen

No Scottie went home with a ribbon. Let's not mince words. Our dogs "walked." The ribbons were withheld! For the entire entry: that's 10 Scotties.

Can you imagine? No ribbons, and yet all the Scotties came back a second day for what might be more of the same.

You've probably never seen the likes of this at a dog show. Well, it happened March 18 and 19, 1995, during the Houston and Galveston Kennel Club shows at Houston's Farm and Ranch Club. Outback there - where dog show exhibitors and spectators could easily watch "going-to-ground" - Tejas Earthdogs of Southeast Texas conducted Texas' third set of the AKC's new Earthdog trials.

Scottish Terriers were well represented with 10 dogs and 20 entries. Only Dachshunds with 58 entries and Border Terriers with 22 entries surpassed our breed in numbers. Nine other terrier breeds competed with 58 entries for the two days.

There were pulled Scottie show coats. There were clipped pet coats. There were one or two old champion Scots, and four wanna-be's that had duked it out in the Scottish Terrier conformation ring shortly before.

One old pro of the human variety was among us: Claudia Leffler, Houston. Leffler is the STCA's Earthdog Chairman and a founder of Tejas Earthdogs. Three of her Scottish Terriers have earned Certificates of Game-ness. However, even she and her current Earthdog walked without a ribbon. And she didn't stomp her foot or pout as some handler prima donnas are wont to do. Her dog failed, plain and clear, and she didn't question it.

In fact, all 17 of the introductory tunnel entries and all 23 of the senior earthdog entries failed the first day. Four intro dogs and four seniors were luckier the second day. Sixty of the 74 junior earthdog entries for the two days failed. This earthdog stuff is no piece of cake!

There must be something to be learned from all this losing.

Maybe the lesson is that go-to-ground events can be the kindest, gentlest place to get folks started in terrier competition.

Too many times in the conformation ring it happens otherwise for novices. In Houston that same weekend, a professional handler castigated a beginning owner handler who showed two Scotties in conformation after the ribbon withheld on one of those dogs caused the major to break.

The latest story I've heard is how a conformation judge out in New Mexico left nothing to the spectators' imagination about what she thought of a first time exhibitor's lack of skill in presenting her Scottie, or the dog's unique look. Why was I not surprised when this same exhibitor was a no-show at Texas Panhandle shows two weeks later?

"Who needs to pay money to be belittled in public?" must have been this exhibitor's logical evaluation of dog shows. That kind of treatment is not usual, but one time in the Scottie conformation ring was plenty. Mrs. Novice Exhibitor drove her Scottie home in its comfortable Cadillac never to submit to such humiliation again.

You won't find that mind set among the earthdog tunnels - from judges, handlers or other owners.

Judges for the Tejas Earthdogs tests set the tone with their sense of humor and universal encouragement. Jim Tebbets, Lancaster, CA, a Welsh fancier, and Tom Berry, Rowlett, TX, a Westie man, judged. They, with the new AKC rep for earthdog trials, working Dachshund hunter Gordon Heldebrandt, Sacramento, CA, passed on the good time they were having to those of us who were putting our hopes on a hole in the ground. And, no, they weren't laughing at us!

There were no sarcastic comments. No put-downs. No "Gee, how could you be so stupid?" looks. No veiled rolling of eyes at expert onlookers. No impression that they thought our Scotties were sorry working dogs.

Take a look at the Scottie entrants, and our failures. Maybe it'll make you game to try going-to-ground.

Keltie, owned by Barbara McNeil, Houston, came close to qualifying on the introductory tunnel. Keltie is almost eight. She'd been to one practice day several years ago, but "had never been down a tunnel until the trial, so I was real pleased," said McNeil.

"She didn't qualify, but she's on her way," the judge encouraged McNeil. When Keltie ran the tunnel, but didn't work the rats the required time, the judge allowed coaxing to keep Keltie working (and learning) instead of just having McNeil drag Keltie from the hole as a failed dog.

McNeil's other Scottie entry, 3-year-old Jet, didn't pass either, but she proudly noted, "Jet has killed a mole in the backyard and went after it with a vengeance."

I had the same encouragement with my Sister. At nine, she was the oldest of the Scotties there. I wondered what the old-timer would do. There was frustrating excess sniffing of the premises, but Sister did go down the tunnel, find the rats and work them some. Just not enough or long enough. The judge kindly called me back to the ground above where Sister was watching the rats so I could egg her on to scratch and bark at them. She did. Sister's failures were turned into learning experiences both days - thanks to judges who saw beyond Pass/Fail. My old girl may still have a working title in her, if we can attend a practice day.

Sister's daughter, Tina, a yearling, has a lot to learn. She investigated the hole with interest, then, with a "so what" attitude, proceeded to her own explorations. Nevertheless, I predict she will be a game one.

It was another yearling's first time at working trial or practice. Ivanhoe just needs one point to finish his championship and Suzanne Stevens, Sugarland, had showed him in conformation earlier. Said Stevens: "He just ran around the field. He looked in the hole, but didn't go in it. He's never even smelled a rat. I think he'll do it when he had some exposure."

There was even a teenager taking her Scottie to ground. Sixteen-year-old Tracey Patton, Waller, shows a German Shepherd in junior showmanship, but brought her 4-year-old Scottie, Maxine, to the trial. "I didn't know what to expect," said Patton. "I'm sure Maxine had a good time. She went in the hole but she didn't work the rat."

Claudia Leffler was quite diplomatic about her Reba, co-owned with Kathy Bagnell. Reba won the conformation points Sunday, but, said Leffler, "she could benefit by training sessions offered by the earthdog club. She's gone to ground on a previous occasion, but this was not her day."

Now we get past the "baby tunnel" to a couple old girls who almost "did it" in the more advanced junior earthdog tests.

Eight-year-old Molly, owned by Judy Larson, San Antonio, had been to two earlier trials, both "cold" with no previous exposure to rats, and later to one practice day. Larson described Molly's run: "She went to the hole, sticks her head in, then stops to smell outside the hole, trots around to the judge, who shoos her off, then finally goes down after the rat, and I can't get her out!"

The problem Larson has had with Molly has now been resolved. Molly wasn't working the rat for the minute required in juniors. Creative Larson, who has trained a rescue Scottie to obedience and agility degrees, used the rat pet Enzo for training: "I put his cage inside a dog crate out in the yard and would reward Molly with food. It got her to working longer than a minute."

Larson theorizes about why so many of the dogs left the hole to visit the judge in the screened rate area. She quoted the book Sport with Terriers, which asserts rats at trials need to be buried under dirt or dogs will air scent and go to them the easier way above ground. Larson noticed many dogs sticking noses in the air before trotting right back to the take-out hole where the rats' cage was. Spectators assumed dogs were simply attracted by the judge, but Larson now suggests another possibility; "They may have been smelling the rats. It gives you an appreciation of how their noses work."

Eight-year-old Cally Wampus "thinks this is fun. She likes to do it," said owner, Lynn Seyler, Richmond. Cally went down the junior tunnel both days. She just didn't do the whole job quite fast enough. She did "work the cage like a meathead," brags Seyler.

Seyler says games her family plays with Cally have helped: tunneling under bed covers, playing in boxes, and

Seyler's male is a different story. He came along to watch. "He's a waste of money," laughed Seyler. "He p—s on the scent, hep—s on the entrance, then he trots over and p—s on the judge's shoes," said Seyler of Sunny's marked marking performance at his two practice days.

Well, that leaves just one Scottie loser unreported. I couldn't track her owner down by phone. Let's use a little journalistic license and count her with the "will-do-it-againers." I'm betting on that.

Overall, here's how the breeds stacked up at Tejas Earthdogs' March trials: The 18 qualifying performances from 158 entries were achieved by 16 dogs. Their breeds were: 5 Border Terriers, 4 Dachshunds, 2 Australian Terriers, 2 West Highland White Terriers, 2 Cairn Terriers and 1 Welsh Terrier.

One Scottie participant suggested that older dogs may have an edge at go-to-ground activities. Perhaps so. At least at the Tejas trials, 13 of the 18 qualifying times were earned by dogs older than four. In fact, the qualifiers included a 12-year-old Dachshund and Westie, an 11-year-old Australian, a 9-year-old Dachshund, and four 6- and 7-year-old dogs.

Another Scottie owner thinks the girls best the boys at go-to-ground. Probably not. At least at the Tejas trials, the success of the sexes was fairly evenly balanced. Qualifiers included nine females and seven males.

Anyway, losing at an earthdog event isn't half bad. Call our 10 Scots losers if you must. There certainly wasn't one listed among the qualifiers. We prefer to call them tryers.

The fact is that a Scottish Terrier, Ch. Glenlee's Sable Fox, C.G., owned by Camille Partridge, Philomath, OR, earned her Junior Earthdog title at the first AKC Earthdog tests in the country in October, 1994. She was the first Scottish Terrier to do so and, because of the luck of the draw at that test, is the first dog of any breed in the nation to have an AKC Junior Earthdog (J.E.) title.

Lucy happens to be mother of 1995 Westminster Best in Show winner and #1 Terrier for 1994, Ch. Gaelforce Post Script, a.k.a. Peggy Sue. Peggy Sue's sire, Partridge's Ch. Gladmac's Taliesin the Bard, C.G., also is a working terrier with his American Working Terrier Association Certificate of Game-ness.

Go-to-ground, Peggy Sue! Follow in Mom's and Dad's tunnels.

Ask about our 10 Texas losers later. We owners think their go-to-ground instinct is there. The talent will come. Even Mozart and Beethoven practiced their pianos.

Memories

Scottish Terrier Club of Greater Washington, D. C.
Second Licensed Obedience Trial,
April 21, 1995

By Faith Harrop

As I drove up I-95 toward home Friday afternoon, my thoughts went back to the events of the day. The Scottish Terrier Club of Greater Washington, D.C.'s second obedience trial. I remembered the wonderful evening before the show spent with club members of S.T.C. of G. W. and Barbara and Edward Whitney. This charming couple show Kerry Blue Terriers and Portuguese Water Dogs in obedience. Mr. Whitney would judge Scotties in obedience the next day. The conversation went from sailing ships to, of course, dogs, training and trials. I remembered the fun Letty Passig and I had loading her van late that night and preparing lunch meat and veggie trays at midnight.

My mind wandered back to this morning. The weather was overcast, gray and rainy in contrast to the warm sunny atmosphere in Exhibition Hall A. I thought of the excellent ring with its clean mats. There wasn't a ripple, a bump or a speck of dust on them. The jumps were shiny white. Trophies and a lovely daffodil centerpiece finished the scene.

I remembered the thrill of JoAnne Dale earning her first CD, of Letty Passig, Diana Price and Tracy Piluso earning legs, and of Tracy Piluso and Scottie Maxwell Jones going High in Trial from the Novice A class.

I smiled at how we all chipped in to put out a yummy lunch and how we all sat around sharing good food and good conversation. This club can cook!

Most of all, I remembered how beautiful this trial was, how professional it was, and how warm and fun it was.

Before I knew it, I was pulling into my driveway with four tired dogs and a tired me. But glad that I had been there.

I am looking forward to the fall of 1996 when the S.T.C. of G.W.'s obedience trial will be held with its specialty in October. □

Is Canine Brucellosis on the Rise?

The following is taken from an AKC Information Bulletin dated 3/21/95.

To: State Veterinarians
State Veterinary Associations

From: Dr. Leland Carmichael,
Baker Institute
Dr. Sang Shin,
Diagnostic Laboratory
Dr. Donald Lein,
Diagnostic Laboratory

Subject: Submissions of Sera for Canine Brucellosis Testing
Increase

During the past year, the number of sera submitted for canine brucellosis diagnosis increased more than 75% over 1993 (total of 1993: 1359; of 1994: 2399) Brucellosis in dogs caused by Brucella canis may cause infertility, lymph node enlargement and bone infections in both sexes, but the principal problem in infected females is repeated abortions and the spread of the disease to other dogs. Occasionally, the infection may spread to humans. Male dogs suffer infections of the prostate gland, epididymides testes and, commonly, develop testicular atrophy and sterility.

The infection is believed to be more prevalent in the Southern States, with prevalence rates estimated at approximately 6%, but accurate data are lacking. Nevertheless, in 1994, canine Brucellosis was diagnosed at the Diagnostic Laboratory and Baker Institute, College of Veterinary Medicine, Cornell University, in 24 states, with the highest rates in the South. Though the number of samples tested was greater in 1994, the proportion of seropositive samples remained remarkable constant (5.5%). When canine Brucellosis was first identified at Cornell in 1966, the disease was recognized primarily in Beagles; during the past year it was found mainly in purebred dogs comprising several breeds. There was an exceptional increase in the number of infected Labrador Retrievers from kennels in at least 6 states, a problem that is being followed closely at both Cornell laboratories. Reports from veterinarians in the Mid-West also suggest an increase in the infection. Two large kennels that breed pups for the wholesale market have been identified as infected. A veterinarian in Kansas reported a dispersal sale of about 400 dogs in a kennel in Missouri where canine Brucellosis had been diagnosed; dogs had been shipped to 13 states. In another instance, pups from an infected kennel were reported to have been sold as family pets. These examples indicate that greater measures should be taken to control canine Brucellosis, especially in breeding dogs and dogs to be sold as pets.

The reasons for the dramatic increase in submissions is not known. However, the Diagnostic Laboratory at Cornell is gaining nationwide recognition for the quality of its Canine Brucellosis Diagnostic Service; the American Association of Veterinary Diagnosticians (AAVLD) has also recognized it link with the Baker institute where, over the past decade, tests for B.canis infection have improved greatly in specificity, as well as sensitivity. Each serum sample is screened by a rapid microscopic agglutination test using a mutant (M) B.canis strain as the source of antigen. Use of the M strain has reduced false-positive results from 50% to approximately 12%, which has spared the lives of many dogs who had been diagnosed falsely as infected by commercial slide agglutination tests or the tube agglutination tests provided by the USDA to many diagnostic laboratories. If an animal's serum reacts with the M antigen, the serum is then tested by an agar gel immunodiffusion (AGID) test, using a cytoplasmic protein antigen of very high specificity for brucella organisms. If both tests are positive, blood cultures can be performed to confirm the serodiagnosis.

If there are any questions concerning canine Brucellosis testing, please contact the diagnostic Laboratory, College of Veterinary Medicine at Cornell University (TEL: 607-253-3900; FAX 607-253-3943). As of January 1995, all diagnostic samples will be tested in the Diagnostic Laboratory rather than at Baker Institute.

Drs. Leland Carmichael and San Shin of the Baker Institute and the New York State Diagnostic Laboratory at Cornell report a dramatic increase in the number of serum samples submitted for canine Brucellosis testing during the past year. In 1994, nearly 2400 samples were received from 25 states, a jump of 75 % over the total submitted in 1993.

Of that number, 5.6 % proved seropositive, a proportion that was consistent with the previous year.

Carmichael and others believe the infection to be somewhat more prevalent in the South, although scattered reports from veterinarians and dog breedas a reference laboratory for canine Brucellosis tests. Exacting attention is paid to each case, since it is recognized that a positive diagnosis is tantamount to the end of a dog's reproductive life or, indeed, its survival. The Diagnostic Laboratory is fortunate to have a close ers in the Mid-West also suggest an increase in infection in that region. One veterinarian reported a dispersal sale of several hundred dogs in a kennel where canine Brucellosis had been diagnosed; dogs were said to have been shipped to thirteen states. Practices like these contribute a great deal to the spread of Brucellosis. Regulations are few, and poorly enforced.

Brucellosis in dogs represents a serious threat to a breeding kennel. Caused by the bacterium Brucella canis, it is transmitted sexually and can cause infertility and bone infections in both males and females. In males it may also cause testicular atrophy and infections of the prostate gland or testes. In females, the most serious problem associated with the disease is repeated abortions of successive litters of pups. Abortion usually occurs six to eight weeks after conception, when apparently healthy bitches may abort without warning.

No dog should ever be used for breeding until it has been tested twice - with a 30-day interval between tests - and shown to be free of Brucellosis. Many infected dogs appear to be healthy, while others show only vague signs of illness, such as lethargy or loss of libido. Antibiotic therapy is generally unsuccessful, leaving an ethical dog breeder no choice but to neuter or euthanize an infected animal.

With so much at stake, accurate diagnosis is critical. Cornell's Diagnostic Laboratory is gaining nationwide recognition for the quality of its Canine Brucellosis Diagnostic Services. The Laboratory uses a rapid agglutination test developed by Dr. Carmichael at the Baker Institute that has reduced the incidence of false-positive results to less than twelve percent. That may sound like a lot of false positives, but not when compared to the only available alternative. The commercial slide-agglutination tests and the tube-agglutination test that are still used in some veterinary diagnostic laboratories commonly have a false-positive rate of 50%. That means that as many as half of the dogs diagnosed with canine Brucellosis are not in fact infected. Misdiagnoses often result in the needless destruction of healthy dogs.

The Baker Institute has a pamphlet on canine Brucellosis that can be obtained by writing to the Office of Public Affairs, Baker Institute, College of Veterinary Medicine, Ithaca, NY 14853 (607)256-5627. □

Stepping out at Westminster, his first show since last October, landed Toby and Award of Merit over some of the county's best Scottish Terriers. Thank you Mr. Holloway! He was beautifully handled to this prestigious win by Larry's friend Jennifer Schamp. Toby stands at stud at Bannerdown handled by Larry Cornelius. See his pedigree in the last issue of the Bagpiper.

Destiny's Curtain Call and Destiny's Standing Ovation

These two five month old girls are from Toby's first litter of SIX out of our Polly (Ch. Mirriemoor's Mystical Memory). They exhibit the excellent layback, tight elbows, wide rears and clean beautiful heads of their parents. Look for these hellions, along with their brother, Destiny's Stage Door Johnny, around the rings this summer.

We would also like to congratulate Toby's mom Visa (Am. Can. Ch. Hycourt's Gold Card Destiny) on her last litter who are currently strutting around show rings:

Destiny's Holiday At Hycourt and Destiny's Christmas Candy.

STCA Third and Fourth Quarter 1994 Awards Standings

THIRD QUARTER 1994 AWARDS STANDINGS

This report covers the period from January 1, 1994 to September 30, 1994. The Tally Cois composed of STCA member volunteers who go over each show as listed in the AKC Awards books. The committee works very hard to accurately record wins. We would never intentionally leave out any dog. However, if the AKC Awards books are inaccurate in any way (e.g. ownership, points, wins) or we have made a mistake in the tallies, it is the owner's responsibility to notify the Tally Committee in writing of the error. Address all correspondence to Vandra L. Huber, 18831 NE 140th Place, Woodinville, WA 98072 - 6301 Telephone (206) 881-5809. Send a copy to the tally award coordinator(s) for the specific award.

Scottie Seniors

Campbell's Gae Brenna, WCF

Brenna turned 13 this February. She has survived cancer and outlived her litter sister and her daughter. Everyone who meets Brenna thinks she is a puppy. She acts more like 13 months than 13 years. Brenna attends our club's obedience classes every week, participates in our annual agility meet and, when she is in the mood, does go-to-ground. She hates baths and grooming, but loves being the center of attention. She participated in our 1st Veteran's Sweepstakes last year and will try again this year. I cherish every day that this little, black bundle of personality is here to charm us.
